

Do You Look Like Your Voice?

Chicago Tribune - March 9, 1958

Lenn Redman (right) sketches a telephone "voice" on Jack Eigen's radio show from the Chez Paree. Eigen writes a weekly television and radio column for The Chicago Tribune.

• Yes, says Lenn Redman, Chicago caricaturist, lecturer, and humorist, who sketched these strangers hurriedly as he talked to them briefly on the telephone. In this stunt, Redman asks some leading questions but gets only a few pertinent answers in the 10 to 40 seconds he converses with each subject. Cy Wolf, a Tribune photographer, checked up on him, with the rather startling results pictured here.

This is Sue Sulwin, another north side student (above and right). She and Redman chatted for 20 seconds.

Hazel Erik

Marsha Leasley

A north side model, Marsha Leasley, as Redman imagined her.

Caricature of Hazel Erik, north side, a ball'ing manager.
